

WeVideo Picked for OnMobile Top 100 List

Named one of the most promising companies in the mobile sector

Redwood City, CA [OnMobile 2012] – June 12, 2012 – WeVideo (www.WeVideo.com), creators of the world's most powerful and easy-to-use online video editing platform, today announced that they have been picked by the AlwaysOn editors and their distinguished panel of judges for their OnMobile Top 100 List of the most promising companies in the mobile sector.

“With the quickly maturing mobile market, opportunities are opening up almost faster than entrepreneurs can respond. There is no question that mobile becoming the new norm, with smartphone and tablet penetration increasing exponentially in both consumer and business environments. App developers are bringing their disruptive skills to the corporate and enterprise world as well, giving scope and purpose to mobile users in the business world,” says Tony Perkins, founder and editor of AlwaysOn. “This explosive market is being driven in large part by the companies that made this year’s OnMobile Top 100 list. We congratulate the OnMobile 100, companies that our editors believe represent some of the highest-growth opportunities in today’s private company marketplace.”

“The world is going mobile at an incredible pace and the processing intensive tasks of video editing will be no exception,” said Jostein Svendsen, WeVideo co-founder and CEO. “Access to our online editing platform via our Android app and Google Drive are just the start of our push to become the premier resource for collaborative video publishing in the mobile space.”

The latest recognition follows a string of WeVideo announcements including its YouTube partnership, launch of its Android app and its Google Drive integration.
