

WeVideo Enables Google I/O Extended Community with Video Editor Drive App

WeVideo to present their Youtube integration and power shoutouts from the world wide community

San Francisco, CA (Google I/O 2012) – June 27, 2012 – WeVideo (www.WeVideo.com), creators of the world's most powerful and easy-to-use online video editing platform are empowering the world wide community to shoot, edit and share their "shoutouts" during the Google I/O conference. This will be done through WeVideo's integration with Google Drive. In addition, the WeVideo team will be participating in a panel discussion at Google I/O, where Krishna Menon, WeVideo's CTO, will discuss the ways and hows of how to share edited video via WeVideo YouTube integration.

WeVideo is donating its platform to Google I/O Extended, where developers all over the world will attend simultaneous local viewing parties. Google I/O participants will film themselves and submit their content via the WeVideo App for Google Drive.

“Google is an innovative leader in the delivery of online content, and we're excited to be participating in the Google I/O event,” said Jostein Svendsen, WeVideo co-founder and CEO. “We are especially excited to be delivering content to the Google community and followers throughout the world, so members of Google Technology User Groups can lend their voice to the excitement of Google I/O.
